Dulcie Richards

Laid to Rest

Loved by All, Coleman High School
 Student Passes on to Higher Life
 —Funeral Held Tuesday.

Dulcie Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Richards, passed peacefully to the Great Beyond last Saturday evening between 9 and 9.30, after a week's illness, heart trouble being the cause of death. She was in her eighteenth year.

On Tuesday afternoon the funeral was held, the procession leaving the home and proceeding to St. Alban's church, where the beautiful and impressive service for the dead was read by the Rev. A. S. Partington, B. A., rector. As the funeral party passed up Centre Street, headed by the boys and girls of the high school, the flag on the school flagstaff was flying at half mast, and the bell was tolled for the passing of a loved fellow student who was admired for her unflinching ambition and her lovable disposition.

A profusion of floral tributes bore mute testimony of the sympathy of relatives and friends of the bereaved parents and family. The church service was choral, and beautiful appropriate hymns were sung, being "Jesus Lover of My Soul," to the Welsh musical setting; "Breathe O'er Me, Breath of God," and "Abide With Me," Mr. T. Elgar Roberts playing the organ accompaniments. At the close of the church service Handel's "Dead March in Saul" was played, and the procession passed on up the hill to the beautiful cemetery which at this season is covered with a snowy white mantle.

Here the committal service of the Church of England was read, and a multitude of school students and citizens stood with bared heads as the casket was lowered to its resting place. A short address was then given by Rev. A. E. Larke, pastor of St. Paul's United Church.

Dulcie, who was born in Coleman, had suffered attacks of heart trouble for several years, but would always resume her school activities as quickly as possible, and at one time was secretary of the high school literary society. She took a keen interest in its programs and often contributed in readings and musical selections. Her outlook on life, despite her sufferings, was always of the brightest, even up to the time of her last illness. It was with sad hearts that her school chums preceded the flower covered hearse on her last journey past the old school grounds where she had been a familiar figure during her lifetime.

The sincere sympathy of the community goes out to her parents and her brother and sister in their great sorrow, which is deeply shared by young and old. Besides the high school students, there were many old school friends, and a large number of people marching in the procession,

Public Interest Demands Highway Be Kept Open

Local Representative Bodies Join in Asking Prompt Action by Highways Department.

The inconvenience to motorists and loss of business to Pass towns last winter owing to the snow blockade on Highway No. 3 through the Crow's Nest Pass, has awakened public interest locally and further afield as to the necessity of it being kept open throughout the winter.

As no definite information has been given out in response to enquiries as to the department's intentions concerning the road to the inter-provincial boundary, it was decided on Tuesday by the towns of Coleman and Blairmore to send the following despatch to the minister of highways: Hon. O. L. McPherson, Esq., Minister of Highways, Edmonton, Alberta.

The following representative bodies of Crow's Nest Pass towns place before department necessity of keeping open Highway No. 3 to inter-provincial boundary throughout winter. It is the only highway in Alberta permitting of winter travel to the Pacific coast and if closed means loss of business to all lines in Pass towns, and necessitates shipment of automobiles by railway flat cars from Fernie to Coleman, over the summit of the highway.

If highway is open, it increases gasoline sales of which some revenue accrues to province, besides, the necessity of maintaining traffic demands that this be kept an open highway at all seasons. (Signed) James Moores, Mayor of Coleman; J. H. Farmer, Mayor of Blairmore; Herb Snowdon, chairman Coleman school board; W. H. Chappell, chairman Blairmore school board; H. T. Halliwell, president, Coleman Board of Trade; L. L. Morgan, president Blairmore Board of Trade.

On Sunday the road was cleared to within a short distance east of Coleman, and on Tuesday it was reported that the snow plow had been ordered to Graman. As far as can be learned, this equipment has to operate as far east as Macleod, south to Cardston and north to Graman. Those in charge had no instructions to proceed further west than the point reached on Sunday. West of Coleman is situated the important plant of the East Kootenay Power Co., and Highway No. 3 is the only artery of communication through the mountains between the western provinces and the western states and the Pacific coast.

It is used by motorists the year through, and increasing motor traffic emphasizes the necessity of the highways department making adequate provision for keeping the road open at all seasons.

DRAWING CARDS

(By G. F. Douchat)

Whether it be hardware, groceries, dry goods or furniture, it is a very easy matter for large mail order houses to induce the producers or manufacturers to manufacture their products in such a manner that the unsuspecting public may be led to believe they are receiving phenomenal bargains.

Though their capital resources without a doubt enables them in many instances to purchase to better advantage than the average rural town merchant, that advantage is not of such proportion as to permit them to sell merchandise at the prices they do.

The fact that competition is equally as keen among manufacturers as it is among retailers must not be overlooked. Manufacturers are today working on extremely small margins of profits. When quoting prices on their wares to jobbers or retailers they must content themselves with a reasonable margin of profit, or be deprived of orders.

That is the reason that the small extra discount they are able to quote large mail order houses is not sufficiently attractive to warrant those buyers tying up their capital in enormous stocks.

Why should they tie up thousands of dollars in carloads of merchandise when the extra discount is so small? Quantities buying under such conditions is certainly no benefit.

Under the circumstances there remains only one alternative and that is, to have the goods manufactured according to certain specifications.

If a chair happens to be the commodity in question, a sacrifice must be made in the quality of the stock used, as well as a reduction in the number of rungs or reinforcements. Here it might be well to mention that paint is capable of hiding a multitude of sins.

If it be upholstered furniture a sacrifice must be made in the quality of the upholstery.

However, in order to retain the confidence of the buying public, a genuine bargain is occasionally offered. Merchandise is sold at cost and in many instances below cost. The loss enjoyed on such transactions or "drawing cards" as they are frequently referred to, is certainly not charged up to profits and loss, but charged to advertising, which is an item of overhead and must eventually be passed on to the consumer in the form of inflated prices elsewhere.

There returns to my memory a special sale launched by a large furniture house in one of our western cities not long ago. This firm advertised a special price of $8.75 on mattresses

Skating and Curling

Rink To Open Soon

Will Be Ready at End of Month is the Intention of Manager
 Albert Knowles

Albert A. E. Knowles informs The Journal that the skating rink is being prepared for the opening as quickly as possible, and it will be operated under his management, as well as the curling rink. It will be ready for skating early in December, and curling a few days later. As it is pay day at the end of this week, Mr. Knowles suggests that it would be advisable to pay part of the season ticket price and balance later, as all tickets are payable in advance, and may be obtained at Coleman Novelty Store.

BELLEVUE MINE WORKER KILLED

Bellevue, Nov. 12.—A mine worker named R. Panchuk met his death at the Bellevue mine here this morning. He was employed around the Bellevue mine tipple and at the time of his death was working on the rock dump. Mr. Panchuk has been a resident of Bellevue for a long time and had worked at the Bellevue mine yard nearly all the time of his residence. He leaves a wife and family in his native country, Czechoslovakia.

A very enjoyable evening was held at the whist drive and dance in the K. of P. hall on Saturday, twelve tables being in play. The prize winners were Mrs. O. Smith, Mrs. M. Wilson, R. Anderson and A. Garnett. After lunch everyone enjoyed dancing to the "peppy" music played by Mrs. Sali's orchestra.

A New and Better Attitude

The world is passing through a period of depression from the evil effects of which practically no civilized nation is exempt, and the more highly developed and industrialized a nation has become, the more severely is it suffering from the prevailing depression. Undoubtedly, it is not wise to unduly dwell upon or stress existing hard times, and the tendency to do so should be resisted, but, on the other hand, it would be even more unwise to ignore facts, deliberately shut our eyes to them, and not make the required effort to overcome and shorten the present evil, seek for causes of it, and take necessary steps to prevent its recurrence.

There have been many such periods in the past, and there will, in all probability, be more of them in the future, despite all that man can do to prevent them. In fact, human fallings and human greed are the underlying causes of these periods of depression, and their entire prevention will only be brought about by a complete reform of the human race. The present period differs, however, from former periods of depression in at least two important respects, both of which are the outcome of a changed attitude on the part of the vast majority of people towards our whole social and economic structure.

First, there is greater interest taken in relief measures than ever before by governments, corporations, and individuals alike. We no longer regard acute misery as necessary. We may not have learned yet how to prevent it, but there is a widespread and growing belief that the thing can be done and there is considerable willingness to make sacrifices to attain the desired end.

No longer is there callous indifference to the suffering caused by reason of unemployment. We have progressed to the point of realizing that the homeless casual laborer is not the only or even the principal sufferer in such times as these. We have learned to concentrate attention and relief upon the families of the unemployed who are permanent members of the community. We have come to realize that the difficulties of hundreds of thousands are not of their own making, and that they cannot be allowed to suffer want and utter privation. We have learned, too, that it is better to provide emergency relief work for these people than to hand out doles and make them recipients of charity.

Thus in this present period of depression we find relief works being undertaken on a scale hitherto unknown. In Canada, it means that over $100,000,000 will be expended in order to provide temporary work for those lacking employment. This, of course, is not a cure; nor is it a preventive. It is merely an amelioration of existing conditions. It means, too, that as a people we are mortgaging our future, because these $100,000,000 or more will be borrowed moneys upon which we must pay interest for many years to come. But it is better to utilize these moneys in providing work than to dole it out in charity. Furthermore, if the works instituted are of the right character, in a word, if they are of a permanent character and productive of good to the country in the years to come, and the money thereon is not wastefully expended, they may even prove factors in creating and maintaining a new prosperity and averting of further periods of depression.

But an even more important aspect of this present period of depression is discovered in the efforts being put forth to find out what caused the depression, and, if it is better to utilize these moneys in providing work than to dole it out in charity. We now realize that a good deal of the economic thinking of recent years has not stood the test of the last twelve months. But, as we still think that it is the business of an economic system to make for human enjoyment, Economics is not the dismal science to this generation. We know we have the productive capacity to provide a generous minimum standard of living to all who will work and we regard large scale unemployment and consequent suffering as a reflection upon our intelligence.

It is one thing, of course, to believe that a deep seated ill ought to be cured and quite another to cure it. And while there is no justification as yet for thinking that this is the last depression which we shall ever encounter, there is a considerable warrant for a tempered optimism. Some of the ablest minds in business and in the universities are directed toward the problem. We have more statistical information which bears on the question of the business cycle than ever before. We are developing a technique for alleviating the worst effects of depressions, which will be of value even if a cure is not found. The outlook is far from hopeless.

Power From Nelson River

British Dominion Syndicate Makes Offer To City Of Winnipeg
Offer of blocks of power from the proposed White Mud Falls development on the Nelson River in Northern Manitoba has been made to the city of Winnipeg by the British Dominion Power Syndicate, it is stated. The proposal made in a letter from Sir Reginald Brade, head of the syndicate, was referred to J. G. Glasco, manager of the city hydro system. Commencing in 1935, blocks of power ranging from 20,000 to 100,000 horsepower would be available, according to the letter. According to Mr. Glasco the offer comes "ten years ahead of the game," and cost of transmission would be very cheap. A complete report will be submitted to the city utilities commission at its next session.

Ready For Action

Mother was trying hard to arrange a match between her daughter and the wealthy young landowner.

"Beatrice," she said to her daughter, "If Harold asks you to be his wife tonight, tell him to speak to me."

Beatrice nodded, and then said: "And if he doesn't ask, Mother?" "In that case, said her mother, "tell him I want to speak to him."

Blindness In Many Cases Is Preventable

Preservation Of Sight Should Be Taught In Schools
That one-half of blindness among children is preventable, and that the prevention of blindness should be first taught in the schools, is the opinion of Miss Mary C. McLeod, National Field Secretary of the Prevention Department of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Toronto.

Miss McLeod said that her department was in favor of text books with larger type being used, as they are in the States. A child with defective sight would have to strain to read small type at present used in text book publication. In order to consider the publication of such a book when the new reader for the western province comes out, a committee has been formed, with Dr. Fletcher, of Winnipeg, as head. A survey is also being made in an effort to have sight saving classes instituted in the larger cities, she said.

Television Is Improving

Spectators See Actors Distinctly At Distance Of Thirty Miles
Images as clear as those seen in the average motion picture theatre are projected by a television transmitter which has been tested in Germany. The spectators are able to observe the vividly clear pictures much as if they were at a moving picture show. The transmitter catches pictures with a sharp lens having a celerity of 50,000 light points a second. By the use of a photo-electric cell these light points are changed and transmitted on a 70-meter wave. Spectators 30 miles distance faced the lens and saw pictures of the actors with the utmost distinctness.

Danger from Colds

Every woman beyond middle age should realize that a majority of the troubles she has to fear have their origin in what are known as common colds. Each attack lowers her vitality and reduces resistance to disease. At this season of the year every woman should see that she does not neglect to meet the rigors of the climate and especially that strength should be restored after any cold, however slight. For this Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a reliable tonic.

These Pills are not a mere stimulant giving temporary relief. They build up the body by creating that which is lacking in the system. They improve the appetite and digestion and make the usual food a source of strength. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

British Columbia Apples

New Market For B.C. Apples Being Developed In South America
British Columbia apples now have a regular market at ports on the east coast of South America, according to F. C. Garde, manager of the Empire Shipping Company Limited. This development of the British Columbia market was brought about by experimental consignments made by this company last year; the year's shipments representing an increase of 400 per cent.

They make an entire and clean sweep of the intestines, and nothing in the shape of a worm can find lodgment there when these powders are in operation. Neither could be more thorough or desirable than their action.

Some People Lucky With Blind Purchases

King's Warehouse In London Sells Some Valuable Parcels
What the Lost Property Office is to an ordinary railway, the King's Warehouse, situated in Lower Thames Street, London, England, is to the Customs and Excise Department of the British Government. Here are dumped articles and merchandise left unclaimed by the individuals to whom they have been consigned, plus a considerable proportion of confiscated smuggled goods. From time to time these articles are put up for auction, and great bargains are not infrequently picked up. On one occasion a small case, labeled "Kosmos," unidentified, was knocked down for a few shillings. When the purchaser took it home and opened it he found it to be nearly half-full of a solid, waxy substance somewhat of the appearance of mastic, which proved to be ambergris, that precious product of diseased whales worth about $50 an ounce. There were approximately 40 lbs. weight of it in the case, and it was sold for about $30,000. Another, a lucky bidder obtained possession, for the sum of half-a-crown, of a small cardboard box, listed in the catalogue as containing "seabirds" eggs—various. On examining his purchase, he found among the eggs one of the Great Auk, an extinct species of sea-fowl. Later on, it realized at auction for its fortunate finder the nice little sum of $1,800.

"Audible Museum" In Berlin

Phonograph Record Made In 1908 Is Among Collection
The piercing wail of a grief-stricken Korean, the merry song of a Roumanian tailor, the woe of an American cowboy and the lingering call of a Spanish night watchman are some of the exotic sounds which the non-traveller will shortly be able to hear in an "audible museum" soon to be established in Berlin under the direction of the Ministry of Posts. A recently found primitive phonograph record of Count Zeppelin's voice in which the father of the airship appeals to the German people for support of his project will also be included. This record dates from 1908, shortly after a disaster to one of his airships at Echterdingen, and includes the words: "In a few years my airships will conquer the world." Acting on the belief that appropriate sounds intensify the impressions a visitor receives from displays, the Ministry intends to incorporate a series of phonograph records with various exhibits, which interested folk may turn on and hear the voices of such men as Edison, Marconi, Lindbergh, and of others of historical interest, as well as sounds from other lands and other times in so far as they are collectable and recordable.

I told you I would pay you the first time I found $2. I just found it today. Here it is. The honest men are not all dead yet."

Origin Of Common Expression

The expression "to put a spoke in the wheel" would suggest adding strength to a wheel, although actually the saying is used to indicate that somebody's progress has been barred. It has its origin, no doubt, in the far-off days when vehicles had solid wooden wheels. Holes were made in some of these so that the driver who wished to put on the brake could do so by pushing through one of the holes a piece of wood, called a spoke, and thus prevent the wheel from revolving.

Peace River Bacon

Bacon Hogs Now Shipped In Carloads From Peace River To Vancouver
Less than 30 years ago, the Peace River District of Alberta, an extensive area of country northwest of Edmonton, was considered even by some agricultural experts as unsuited for productive farming. It is now one of the best wheat and other grain producing areas in Canada and also is growing in importance in mixed farming. Bacon hogs are now being shipped in carloads to Vancouver. Among the principal buyers of the Peace River hogs are the Vancouver Department Stores. Housewives of that city say that the bacon from Peace River is of the finest quality and like Oliver Twist they want more. One of the most recent Canadian winners of the world's wheat prize at the International Grain and Hay Show, Chicago, was from the Peace River country, namely, Herman Trele, of Wembley, Joseph H. B. Smith, of Wolf Creek, Alberta, last year's winner, is also an Alberta farmer, but is located outside of the Peace River District.

MEAGRE RESULTS OBTAINED FROM IMPERIAL PARLEY

London, Eng.—Right Hon. Philip Snowden's victory over the imperial conference is now clear. He may give way to the extent of allowing a stabilization period of three years for the present preferences because he needs the revenue, but that is the best the Dominions can hope for.

It is admitted that nearly every vital point of his economic policy will be shelved until a further conference, presumably the Imperial Economic Conference to be held in Ottawa.

This, apparently is acceptable to Premier R. B. Bennett, because he knows the political feeling of the British people, which anticipates that the Conservatives will be back in power by then and will be able to do something towards reciprocal tariffs.

The Dominions are disappointed at the meagre results of the conference and are turning to one another for the creation of a series of treaties between themselves, based on the principle of reciprocal tariffs.

These negotiations are shrouded in mystery because of their delicacy, but one of the Dominion premiers remarked to the British United Press that there was only one thing to be really grateful for, and that was that the conference provided an opportunity for the heads of the various Dominions to get together and lay down the basis of future commercial treaties between themselves.

On the constitutional side, the Dominions are very pleased. The appointment of native born governors-general by direct advice from the Dominion premiers and without the advice of the minister of the mother country, is conceded, but the King will decide the "suitability" of the man named.

However, this condition is so elastic that it is easy to foresee that if the King decides that the previous political affiliations of one of those recommended makes him not suitable, another name must be submitted.

Air Lines Across Canada

Company Being Formed To Operate Coast To Coast Service

Toronto, Ont.—Formation of a transportation company, to be known as Canadian Airways Limited, is well under way.

The plan has been endorsed by the government, thus enabling the C.N.R. to participate with the C.P.R., Western Canada Airways Limited, and the Aviation Corporation of Canada, in the formation of a large company of air transportation.

Headquarters are being established in Montreal, with James A. Richardson as president and Sir Henry Thornton, head of the C.N.R., and E. W. Beatty, head of the C.P.R., joint vice-presidents. There will be 13 directors, representative of leading financial and commercial interests in Canada.

Mr. Richardson, who is director of several aviation and financial organizations, and also sole owner of Western Canada Airways, will be the largest shareholder. Each of the railways will subscribe $250,000 of the capital stock, which amounts to a total of $2,000,000 shares of no par value. Their contribution at the present time is small.

The new organization will operate in two sections, known as Eastern Canada lines and Western Canada lines. The eastern section will be a highly organized passenger, mail and express transit service by air.

Within a very short time, it is understood, passengers, mails and express will be carried from coast to coast within Canada.

Great Future For Vancouver

Minister Says Coast City Will Become Greatest Port In The World

Vancouver, B.C.—Vancouver's political allegiance in Vancouver's own business, and regardless of the duty of the Minister of Marine is the development of transport facilities of this port, which promises to become the "greatest in the world."

Such was the statement of the Minister of Marine, Hon. Alfred Durnan, in the course of an address before the Vancouver Canadian Club recently.

"The port of Vancouver, I believe, is destined to become the greatest in the world," the minister said. "It requires no great imagination to visualize that within the next quarter of a century it will be the centre of a huge trade with the Orient. Vancouver is the gate of British North America for a commerce such as was never dreamed of by the merchants of ancient Asia."

Let him be criticized for making "the oration of a lawyer," the speaker reminded his hearers that some of the country's leading capitalists are now in the city.

"What this country needs is men of action in business as well as politics," he said. "They alone can put a stop to the trade depression which this country, in fact all countries, have suffered during the last couple of years. They alone can bring us back to the practical thoughts, to the sound methods which lie at the very foundation of Canada."

"Margold" To Visit Regina

Delightful Play Which Has Drawn In Montreal and Toronto, Appears For Three Days

Regina, Sask.—Some shows that reach Regina with the east-train direct from London, England, make stretching the point, but "Margold," which will play at the Capitol Theatre for three days commencing Monday, November 24th, can truthfully claim to be a London company.

"Margold" is a delightful play by L. Allen Harker and F. R. Pryor, of the Queen Victoria period. The Queen's visit to the Scottish capital, Edinburgh, starts a romance that is the basis of the play. It will be a welcomed addition to the theatrical season of Regina, and should obtain excellent support because real live actors will tread the boards of the stage and give fish and blood performances.

The splendid cast will include Sophie Stewart, Ellis Irving, Lionel Gledhill, Edmund Beresford, Royston Taylor, Marguerite Collier, Winifred Orr, Yvette Plenne, Walter Roy, Gordon Pettie, William C. Aldous, John Lauriston, Marie Shields and Jean Clyde, daughter of the famous Scottish star, John Clyde. Yvette Plenne is the only member of the cast who was not with the London company when the play was produced there. She stepped into a French part when the original girl could not cross the Atlantic owing to illness.

"Margold," which has had wonderful receptions in Montreal and Toronto, should delight Regina when it opens at the Capitol Theatre for a three day run.

White Foxes Driven South

The Pas, Man.—White foxes, the most prized quarry of northern trappers, have been seen 50 miles from this northern Manitoba centre. Scarcity of caribou in the Barren Lands is believed to have driven them south in search of food.

Sees End Of Bolshevism

Predicts That Soviet Russia Will Turn To Capitalism Within a Year

New York.—Sir Percival Dewhurst, chairman of the Ford Motor companies of Europe, predicted, on his arrival on the S.S. Bremen, that Russia will become a capitalist state within a year.

"There is no question but that Soviet Russia will recognize capitalism within a year," Sir Percival said. "They have seen the writing on the wall, and with the anticipated collapse of their five-year plan, there is no doubt at all that they will revert to capitalism to avoid a revolution."

Accompanying Sir Percival were Maurice Dolfus and Dr. Karl Wilhelm Hauss. The group will confer with Henry Ford at Detroit.

To Eliminate Radio Trouble

Street Cars In Moose Jaw Are Equipped With Condensers

Moose Jaw.—Street cars in Moose Jaw have been equipped with condensers with a view to eliminating much of the radio interference in the city, according to an announcement made recently by J. Lebrack, secretary of the Moose Jaw Radio Association. The condensers have been installed as a result of negotiations between radio dealers in the city and the street railway company. They are installed on the generators in the street cars.

ROYAL ADDRESS AT OPENING OF INDIAN PARLEY

London, England.—The future of India's millions was cast into the caldron of the momentous round table conference which the King, in a hopeful speech, opened in the great gallery of the House of Lords on November 12.

A scene splashed with Oriental splendor such as rarely has been viewed before in the western world was the setting for the ceremonial inauguration of the important negotiations, the gravity of which was stressed in the royal address and those which followed, by Premier MacDonald, the Indian princes and the delegates from India.

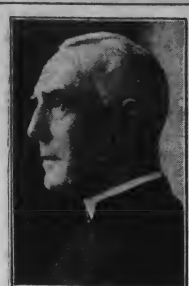

East met west round two large oval tables, one set within the great red and gold hall, scene of the opening of the five-power naval conference last winter.

A few minutes before noon the King entered the hushed hall. Centred in the colorful gathering was the golden throne chair from which he addressed the assembly. In conventional morning clothes the King made an impression by the fervor of his address.

From his red spectacle case he took rimless glasses, looked them behind his ears, and slowly and carefully read his speech.

"No words of mine are needed to bring home to you the momentous character of the task to which you have set your hands," he said in an appeal for solution of the great problem of the future system of government for India. "Each one of you will, with me, be profoundly conscious how much depends to the whole of the British Commonwealth of the issue of your consultations. This community of interest leads me to come forth and it is a happy argue that there should be present today the representatives of my government in all the sister states of this commonwealth.

"I shall follow the course of your proceedings with the closest and most sympathetic interest, not indeed without anxiety, but with a great confidence. The material conditions which surround the lives of my subjects in India affect me greatly and will be ever present in my thoughts during your forthcoming deliberations."

"I have also in mind the just claims of majorities and minorities of men and women, of town dwellers and tillers of the soil, land owners and tenants, of the strong and the weak, of the rich and the poor, of the races, castes and creeds in which the body politic is composed.

"For these things I care deeply. I cannot doubt that the foundation of self-government is in the fusion of such divergent claims into mutual obligations and in their recognition and fulfilment. It is my hope that the future of the government of India, based on this foundation, will give expression to her honorable aspirations.

"May your discussion point the way to a sure achievement of this end, and may your names go down in history as men who served India well and whose endeavours advanced the happiness and prosperity of all of my beloved people. I pray that Providence may grant you in bounteous measure wisdom, patience and goodwill."

Four furniture movers took the throne away and replaced it with a chairman's seat while the Maharajahs of Patiala, with his double pearl earrings bobbing against his black beard, proposed that Premier MacDonald take the chair. Aga Khan, head of the Indian Moslems and Great Britain's leading race horse owner, seconded the motion and Mr. MacDonald stepped forward. He spoke, not extemporaneously as usual, but with studied care, reading from a precisely worded address.

"We are met," he said, "to try to register by agreement a recognition of the fact that India has reached a distinctive point in her constitutional evolution. Whatever that agreement may be, some will say that it is not good enough or that it goes too far. Let me say so. We must boldly appeal to an intelligent and informed public opinion."

TROPHY PRESENTATION

George M. Inverarity and J. H. Christison, of Carberry, Manitoba, winners of the Canadian Pacific Manitoba Boys' and Girls' swim club competition. The lucky lads, in addition to the trophy shown being presented to them by C. E. Stockhill, assistant to the vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, win a medal apple and qualify for a free trip to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto.

Predicts Another War

General Ludendorff Sees the Annihilation Of Germany In 1932

Berlin, Germany.—Another great European war in 1932, resulting in the annihilation of Germany, is predicted by General Erich Ludendorff in a pamphlet published recently.

In the 93-page pamphlet, the one-time World War military giant expresses the belief that the war, beginning May 1, 1932, will find Germany, Austria, Hungary, Great Britain and Soviet Russia opposed to France, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania.

He visualizes Germany as the battleground of the nations, with her cities razed by air attacks, her civilian population left to their fate and the nation's youth perishing in masses on the battlefronts.

Although he believes the war will last but a few weeks, he imagines Berlin held in a vise-like grip by the enemy forces, who mercilessly drive the fugitives back into the city's confines to die of starvation.

He sees German culture as receiving its death blow and the terrors of the 30-years' war surpassed.

Vorwärts, in commenting on the pamphlet, recalls Adolf Hitler, at the time of his abortive speech in November, 1923, selected Ludendorff as his minister of war, with the object of organizing a "war of revenge."

Attempted Assassination

President Cosgrave Of Irish Free State Has Narrow Escape

Dublin, Ireland.—An apparent attempt against the life of William T. Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State, was made on Monday night, November 10, it was learned here.

The would-be assassins, who had prepared an ambush on the highway leading to Cosgrave's home, opened fire on the motor car carrying the president, and an accompanying bullet struck both machines but none of the occupants were injured.

President Cosgrave was returning to his home in the Fort Dublin mountains at the time of the shooting and was without his usual armed escort. Neither driver was armed and hence no immediate search was made for the gunmen, who fired from behind bushes. One bullet was said to have entered the car very close to where the president was sitting.

Government officials were reported "most disturbed" by the occurrence.

LARGE SUMS FOR PUBLIC WORKS IN THE WEST

Ottawa, Ont.—Details of public works to be undertaken by way of unemployment relief in Western Canada, totalling $14,555,941, were announced by Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor.

The sum of $52,400 is provided for improvements to the Prince Albert National Park in Saskatchewan. In addition $36,841 is provided for road improvements and sewers in municipalities, distributed as follows: City of Swift Current, $28,341; Village of Kincaid, $1,500; Village of Shellbrook, $2,000; Village of Shaunavon, $1,500; Village of Shamrock, $500; Village of Puanan, $1,000; Village of Coderre, $1,000.

Works authorized in Manitoba total $235,000, and include the expenditure of $20,000 in improvements to the Riding Mountain National Park. The remainder consists of road improvements in municipalities as follows: Ritchie, $1,250; Tache, $1,250; North Kildonan, $66,000; St. Vital, $25,000; East Kildonan, $114,265; St. Paul, $1,250; Brooklands, $6,250.

The expenditure of money on these works has been approved by the Dominion Government and contributions to the undertakings will be made out of the $20,000,000 unemployment relief fund established by parliament at the recent special session.

The list of works for British Columbia is more extensive than the others because a considerable part of the expenditures in Manitoba and Saskatchewan was announced a week ago and the program of works proposed in the province of Alberta has not yet been completed.

In British Columbia there are still municipal public works amounting to $188,632 and provincial undertakings amounting to $4,000, particulars of which have not been received by the Dominion Government. The expenditures will cover a wide range of works, including road improvements, sewer construction, improvements to national parks, construction of parks, waterworks, airports, sidewalks, school grounds and bridges.

TO BOOST TRADE BETWEEN CANADA AND THE ORIENT

Kobe, Japan.—Five committees from the delegates of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce trade missions are holding a series of conferences with representatives of business men from Kobe and Osaka. The committees were appointed, under the heads of wheat, minerals, lumber, fish, and Canadian imports, and Canadians and Japanese business men are together trying to explore all avenues leading to the accomplishment of the object of the mission, namely, increase of trade between Canada and Japan to the mutual advantage of both.

The mayor and Chamber of Commerce of Osaka entertained the trade delegation today. The vice-president of the chamber and John M. Imrie, Edmonton, exchanged felicitations, and hoped for a continuance of the expansion of trade between the countries. The feature address was given by J. O. Cameron, Victoria, president of the chamber and John M. Imrie, Edmonton, exchanged felicitations, and hoped for a continuance of the expansion of trade between the countries.

Following the luncheon the delegates were the guests at a reception given by the Canadian Academy. President Bates and Principal Tench described the beginning and growth teaching 200 pupils, most of them of the institution, which was now children of Canadian missionaries. Mr. Imrie expressed the thanks of the delegates for the reception, and remarked that Canada was obviously exporting her hearts and minds and ideals.

Penitentiary Crowded

Saskatchewan Institution At Prince Albert Cramped To The Doors

Prince Albert, Sask.—The Saskatchewan penitentiary here is cramped to the doors with 538 prisoners, the greatest number in the history of the institution, and those in charge are beginning to worry about berths for others if the turnover of the courts in Saskatchewan here, as usual, continues to be as heavy. Temporary accommodation has been provided for 100 of the men, for whom there are no permanent cells. A new wing, designed to accommodate 200 men, is in the stage of construction but will not be ready for at least two years, so little hope of relief is expected from this source.

Canada's Rights Recognized

Title To Northern Islands Formally Announced By Norway

Ottawa, Ont.—The government of Norway has formally recognized the Canadian title to the Arctic Islands commonly known as the Sverdrup Group, comprising Axel Heiberg, Ellef Ringnes, Amund Ringnes and King Christian. This friendly action on the part of the Norwegian government marks a considerable ground of dispute as to Canadian sovereignty in the whole Arctic section north of the Canadian mainland.

Announcement that Norway has given formal recognition to the Canadian title of these northern islands was made by Sir George Perley, acting prime minister.

Canadian Delegates Welcomed

Kyoto, Japan.—The City of Kyoto welcomed the delegates of the trade mission of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce here. The government, mayor and president of the Chamber of Commerce tendered the delegates a luncheon. The Mayor of Kyoto expressed his pleasure at the opportunity of meeting the Canadian representatives.

Had Season For Fishing

Halifax, N.S.—Further word of poor conditions on the Canadian Labrador were received here with arrival of the trading schooner H. W. McIntosh. Captain Edgar McCarthy said that while the fishing season on the Newfoundland Labrador had been a success, the Canadian territory had experienced one of the worst seasons in its history.

Needed Longer Test

London, England.—Squadron Leader R. S. Booth, commander of the dirigible R-100, said that if the Imperial Inland survey had not been inside, officers of the dirigible R-101 would have insisted upon additional flight trials before that ship left on the voyage which ended in the crash near Beauvais, France.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is an axiom that no man can live unto himself. Each must contribute his share, however small, to the general betterment and well-being of his fellow men. The recluse has no place in a thriving business community. He is simply a barnacle clinging to the ship of progress. In course of time he will be brushed aside. No one will mourn his passing, but a better man will build in the niche he once occupied. The parable of the ten talents is just as applicable today as it was 2,000 years ago. It needs the co-operative effort of every individual to bring progressive betterment to our lives and institutions. Non-co-operation may be the policy of somnolent Asiatics and Hindus, but it cannot be found in the vibrant virility of genuine Canadians. —Hanna Herald.

Transportation is life. The keeping open of railways and highways is as necessary to business and commerce as is the keeping open of lines of communication to an army in the field. If they become clogged or interrupted, there is danger of isolation and defeat.

The provincial department of highways does not appear to be alive to the absolute necessity of keeping open the only highway across the mountains to the Pacific coast. Instead of anticipating the vital importance of keeping open this artery of travel, officials have to be prodded into action by representative organizations in the Pass towns.

Notwithstanding the collection of license fees, gasoline tax, and mileage tax on motor coaches, the highways department would sit back and strangle inter-travel between the coast province, the western States and Alberta. The various organizations in the Pass would be dumb-bells if they sit back and permit such evidence of retrogression. The local member in the legislature, town councils and boards of trade and school boards should unite in a common cause to demand that Highway No. 3 be maintained as an all-year highway. It is important not from a local interest only, but to the whole of southern Alberta and others from more distant places who may desire to travel across the Rockies by the only Canadian winter route available.

Unemployment relief has not been noticed in the Crows Nest pass towns so far. There may be some who have been handed a few groceries to keep from starving, but as regards work of any kind, even shovelling snow, it is conspicuous by its absence. 'Tis not to be wondered at that people demand direct action. A few weeks ago a provincial government employee asked all kinds of questions as to how people were living, when he could have taken a short cut by finding from the coal companies the average wage of a mine-worker during the past year and a half. Moreover, he had the gall to state that the government wanted to be as generous as possible. Generous—indeed,—with the people's money. It is to laugh! And the ironic part of it is that people are still wondering what share of the Federal government's $20,000,000 relief appropriation is to be expended in the Crows Nest Pass industrial area, which certainly deserves more consideration than it has received so far. The legislature at its next session should be given a fearful by George Cruickshank, M.L.A. If the government can show what it has done towards unemployment relief in the Crows Nest Pass in public work, The Journal would be more than pleased to give it front page publicity.

A number of foreign-born appeared before Judge McDonald on application for naturalization. One man on being asked if he was satisfied with the way this country was governed, replied in the negative, and further added that some of the law needed changing. It might be superfluous to remark that he still remains unnaturalized. It is somewhat ludicrous to think of an applicant of foreign birth speaking so candidly to the court. Of course it is safer to refuse him citizenship whilst in such a frame of mind. How would such a reply be dealt with in that supposedly workers' paradise, Soviet Russia?

The Anglican church minister called The Journal to task. It was deserved. In commenting on Armistice Day observance, or lack of it, it was stated that the schools were the only places where two minutes silence was observed. At St. Alban's a special service was held at the hour of Armistice, therefore The Journal was wrong. But now that attention has been called to it, it might be added that the attendance was so pitifully small that one wondered if there is any force to the words "Lest We Forget!" or is it a hollow phrase?

Soviet Russia controls the agricultural industry of that nation. Farmer organizations in Western Canada are asking the government of Canada to guarantee them a fixed price for wheat. If the same comparative price level were to obtain as in Russia, would the farmers like it?

Boy Scouts Association Appoint New Executive

Provisional President Appointed and Scoutmaster and Sec. Treasurer Appointed

A meeting of the Boy Scouts executive was held in The Journal office on Monday evening, Rev. A. S. Partington, B.A., provisional president, acting as chairman, and A. L. Watkins as secretary. There not being a full meeting of the executive, a complete slate of officers for the ensuing year was not appointed.

Harold Turner was appointed as Scoutmaster, and the secretary instructed to send to the provincial commissioner for a warrant and confirmation of his appointment. The financial report of Mr. Turner, who has filled the office of assistant scoutmaster and secretary, showed a credit balance in the bank of $79.35.

The provincial commissioner of the Boy Scouts will be the guest of honor at a banquet to be served in the parish hall on Wednesday next at 5.30 p.m., to which the executive and their wives and other guests have been invited. Following the banquet, there will be shown in the K. of P. hall a moving picture film of the World Jamboree of Scouts held last year at Birkenhead, Eng., and a scenic film taken in Alaska. This will be open to the public for a nominal admission fee.

Mrs. C. Devine is a patient in hospital, having undergone an operation. Her sister, Miss Essie Collins, of Calgary, was here for the week-end, and her mother is staying here for the present.

Tennis club members and friends are anticipating a very enjoyable evening at their annual dance in the Grand Union hotel, for which about 200 invitations have been issued. Billy Fraser's orchestra has been engaged for the occasion.

T. Holstead of The Journal office has purchased the Geo. Morgan house on Third street, and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan during the summer moved to the Dr. Davies house on Sixth street which he purchased before the latter left for Vancouver, where his family reside.

The funeral was held here on Tuesday at noon of Donald James McLean, aged 24 years, whose parents live at Bellevue. Mrs. McLean is a daughter of Mrs. Keith Foster, and prior to her marriage lived in Coleman. Their friends extend sympathy in their bereavement.

How Women Lose Fat In England

How would you like to lose unhealthy fat that you don't need and don't want, and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too voluminous abdomen, and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal, and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales to-day and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts. Take one or two teaspoonful every morning in a glass of hot water, and when you have finished the first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you will know the pleasant way to lose weight, for you will also know that the six vitalizing salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

That's the way Englishwomen keep slim—why not you?

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

A small sheet of the first commercial zinc produced in Manitoba was sent Mayor Webb by officials of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelter Company at Pin Flood.

Toronto's first ever woman bank head, 17-year-old Kathleen Boyle, of Buffalo, N.Y., sentenced last April to two years in reformatory, has been released on parole.

A stump hurled through the roof of the camp building during blasting operations killed the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Schunter, Sugar Lake, B.C.

With the immediate object of putting the Canadian fishing industry on its feet, Hon. E. N. Rhodes has arranged for an exhaustive survey of marketing catches at every stage from the fisherman to the consumer.

Canada could aid in the economic recovery of Australia by buying more Australian goods, Lord Stonehaven, former governor-general, said in an address to the Canadian Club at Victoria.

Announcement has been made by R. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., of the acquisition of a site facing Berkeley Square for the big hotel proposed to be erected by the company in London, England.

The Prince of Wales is understood to be planning to sail for South America, January 15, on the trip which has been arranged for him to open the British Trade Exposition at Buenos Aires. He will pay visits to other parts of South America and the West Indies.

Grassy Lake Coal

Coal Obtained By Methods New To Commercial Mining In Alberta

The recent shipment of a car of high grade lump coal, billed from Grassy Lake, Alberta, to Winnipeg, is of unusual interest. Apart from its marking the revival of coal shipments—for Grassy Lake was shipping coal to Saskatchewan in 1908—this shipment has a special interest in that the coal was obtained by methods new to commercial mining practice in Southern Alberta. Future shipments will be watched with considerable interest.

Holstein Herd Has Good Record

Three Holstein cows, members of a herd owned by James A. Thomson of Moose Jaw, have just finished yearly records in the R.O.P. with a production averaging 13,657 pounds of milk containing 657.50 pounds of butter.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are harmful, forming and must be continued. Others contain calomel and dangerous mineral drugs, which render the system, settle in the joints and cause rheumatism and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cause cramp and grip and leave a depressed after effect.

Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the intestines, and encourage nature's machinery to become lax.

A purely vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently touches the liver, bile starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleaned and constipation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect. All druggists 25c and 75c red packages.

The Deadly Monoxide

Four Points Motorists Should Remember About This Poison Gas

Every motorist who is tempted on cold mornings to start his car in the garage and allow the engine to warm up with the doors and windows of the building closed, should remember these four points about the deadly carbon monoxide gas:

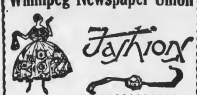

You can't see it!
You can't smell it!
You can't taste it!
But it is deadly!

Keep the doors and windows of your garage open when you have the motor running, or better still, don't let it warm up until you are in the driveway.

Don't run your motor in a closed garage. Statistics show that the hazard of carbon monoxide poisoning, while not very prevalent when compared with other accidental dangers, is gaining rapidly. Last year there were more than twice as many deaths from this cause as in 1924. In 1928 and 1929 death rates from carbon monoxide poisoning showed a steady increase.

Many physicians claim there is no antidote for it. The first thing to do is to get the victim out into the air as quickly as possible, endeavour to bring him back to consciousness by means of artificial respiration and, possibly, use oxygen.

THE SMART SCHOOL GIRL TYPE

KILTED PLAIDS—A DENIABLE CHIC DETAIL

It's so entirely girlish yet so entirely sophisticated. The slightly moulded bodice presents a trim tailored air. The plaid is particularly becoming in square effect, finished with a flat collar. Buttons down the center-front are decorative.

The skirt is given a graceful swing with wide panel effect at the front with kilted plaids at either side and back.

It's Oh! so simple to make. The outfit unbelievably small.

Style No. 916 is designed for the important age of 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

It is shown in dark green crepe puffed woolen. The buttons are green enamel to match the enamel belt buckle.

Covert cloth in wine red is very jaunty. Dark blue wool jersey with vivid red buttons and completed with red leather belt is very smart and practical.

Some Mighty Midgets

Many Small Creatures Stronger In Comparison Than Large Ones

It has been proved that the common mite can draw a load which is fifty times heavier than itself. If an elephant were as strong, in proportion to size, it would have to move nearly 270 tons.

That is only one specimen from Nature's collection of "mighty mites" that perform in secret on land and in the sea.

Even the strongest men find it difficult to lift more than their own weight. Yet, a bluebottle fly can lift more than 30 times its own weight, while it can draw a load that is 150 times heavier than itself.

Objects which are about forty times heavier than themselves are often carried by the mason wasps.

You have seen those ear-splitting powerful drills which are used to tear up the road? Well, there is a mollusc, known as the piddock or pholas dactylus, which can rival their power, and is a superior worker, as it makes no noise.

Silently, but none the less efficiently, the piddock bores through the hardest rock as casually as if it were soap.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

OATMEAL COOKIES

- 1 1/2 cups special cake flour, sifted.
- 2 teaspoons baking powder.
- 1/2 teaspoon salt.
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon.
- 1 teaspoon cloves.
- 1/2 cup butter or other shortening.
- 1 cup sifted brown sugar.
- 1 egg, well beaten.
- 1 1/2 cups oatmeal.
- 1/2 cup milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and spices, and mix together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream well. Add egg. Add oatmeal and flour, alternately with milk, mixing well. Drop by teaspoons on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 18 to 20 minutes. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

THANKSGIVING CONSERVE

- 3 cups cranberries.
- 1 cup dried apples.
- 1 1/2 cups water.
- 1 cup crushed pineapple.
- 1 lemon, juice and grated rind.
- 2 oranges, juice and grated rind.
- 3 cups sugar.

Cook cranberries and apple in the water until tender. Add pineapple, lemon and oranges and sugar. Mix well and cook rapidly until thick and clear. Turn into sterilized glasses and when cold cover with paraffin.

Evidences Of Prosperity

Times Do Not Appear To Be So Bad In This Western City

Among a number of evidences of prosperity in Edmonton, cited by "The Journal," is the fact that the number of telephones in use has increased within a year from 16,124 to 16,641, or over 500. Another evidence is that "one wholesale house in this city sold $30,000 worth of radio sets in September"—thus showing a fair volume of luxury spending.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 23

THE RICH YOUNG MAN—REFUSING A LIFE OF SACRIFICIAL SERVICE

Golden Text: "And He said unto him, 'If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow Me.'"—Luke 9:23.

Lesson: Mark 10:17-27.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 19:7-14.

Explanations and Comments

Reviewing a Life of Sacrificial Service, verses 17-22.—In Matthew the rich young man's question reads: "What good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" and Jesus' reply is, "Why askest thou Me concerning that which is good?" Mark Master what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" and the reply of Jesus is, "Why callest thou Me good? None is good save one, even God." Jesus' question as given here seems to indicate that the young man had used the word 'good' (Good Master) with as little thought as we do when we say "Good Morning"; Jesus would have him weigh his words and see whether he meant what he had said. If he were calling him good in the sense in which God is good, Jesus would accept his homage, Jesus also would have told him to follow Him to know what being His disciple meant, to weigh well the consequences of such a step before entering it.

What Following Christ Means.—If this young man had made the right choice, he would have followed Jesus, he would have followed Him to know what being His disciple meant, to weigh well the consequences of such a step before entering it. If he had given up his possessions to the poor and then to come and follow Jesus, do you not think that Jesus would then have said to him, "You may keep your wealth and use it rightly, for now you are no longer under its snare, you have ceased to put it first in your thoughts, you now have room in your heart for following Me?"

The Choice the Rich Young Man Made.—It was a dramatic moment when the young man came to Jesus with a great choice. The warning which Jesus gave in regard to the difficulty of the spiritual life for the wealthy shows that the young man's decision when he turned away sorrowful, was to keep his wealth and not follow the Master. Wealth which another rightly might possess and rightly use for those who came to Him, it kept him from following Christ. Not only did he have great possessions, but the great possessions that he loved them too much. They deprived him of a vision of God and of the needs of others.

"His soul was like a boat tied fast, but tied with a long rope," said Phillips Brooks. "It was able to straddle up the channel, past headland and light and buoy that marked the way, but always something held it back from perfectly leaving itself at rest beside the golden shore. 'What lack I yet?' And then said Jesus, 'Go sell all that thou hast and come and follow Me.' He did not say, 'It is wicked to be rich.' He only said, 'You will be free if you are poor, and then I can lead you to the Father, in whom you shall find yourself.' He went back, past the buoys and headlands, down the bay to where the rope was tied, and cut the boat loose from its anchorage."

Canadian Tobacco Production

Total 1930 Crop Given As $6,712,700 Pounds

Enough tobacco has been grown in Canada so that if distributed among the population would provide each man, woman and child with over 3 1/2 pounds. The total crop for 1930 is given as 36,712,700 pounds or nearly 7,000,000 pounds more than in 1929. This year's crop was grown on 41,391 acres, 32,170 of which were in Ontario, 9,000 in Quebec and 221 in British Columbia. Ontario accounted for 28,078,000 pounds of the total production, Quebec, 8,490,000 pounds and British Columbia, 144,700 pounds.

For several years several million pounds of tobacco have been exported to the British Isles, and it is expected that this year a considerable percentage of the crop will be exported.

"I believe," he said, turning with mock severity to Gay, "that you've been telling on me."

Simoon Bartlett chuckled as he replied: "She ain't told nothin' I didn't know beforehand, boy. You've got a sort of 'conquerin' way about you. If you hadn't, do you believe this little gal would ha' picked up her duds and started off at a minute's notice?"

"It was thirty minutes," Nick corrected, "and she didn't keep me waiting either! Well, we must be off. A thousand thanks, Mr. Bartlett, for this happy week!"

"Good luck!" called Simoon Bartlett as they strode away. And good luck had followed them. Through the whole summer, rain came during the night. With few exceptions their days were bright and sparkling. They struck off through picturesque New Hampshire, sleeping at farms when the chance came; often spending their nights beneath the stars, and once accepting the hospitality of a Gypsy camp.

September found them in Maine, revelling in those first beautiful days that only at night give a hint of the colder days to come. They had climbed what their hostess of the night before had called "a mountain," which, though hardly deserving the name, showed them a wonderful, wide stretch of creaming waves.

"I'd almost forgotten that I loved the sea," said Nick. "Gay! let's set sail for a warmer climate! There's money enough yet to take us South—or shall it be the big southwest we've dreamed about: Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico—deserts and mountains—canyons and waterfalls—California and the Pacific! Oh, my dear! Isn't it glorious to be free?"

"Free? It was then that fear clutched at the girl's heart. She was seated upon the ground, but Nick stood, his back to the wide expanse of blue, his hair blown away from his forehead, an open shirt revealing his strong young throat. As she looked up at him Gay thought that Simoon Bartlett had been right—Nick had a conquering air about him. To think of shutting him up in that stuffy corner of the bank again seemed as cruel as clipping the wings of an eagle. Yet, she thought, with a quickening of her heart, even an eagle has its nest.

"Nick," she said, as she dropped beside her, "do you ever have the least, tiny desire to settle down?"

He smiled, and quoted:

"Who has not felt how andly sweet, The dream of home, the dream of home."

"My dear girl, of course I think of settling down, as you prosaically put it; but not yet. We set out for the ends of the earth, if I remember rightly, and we've reached only the edge of the Atlantic! Settle down! Gay, are you crazy, or—Why, what's the matter?"

She looked up, bravely fighting back the tears, and said: "Nothing, Nick. I—Then so softly he had to bend to hear: "Nick dear—can't go on."

"Can't go on! Have I tired you out, or—Or—Oh, Gay!"

He knew, then. The knowledge came with a blinding sense of chaos. Wonder and dismay went hand in hand. New-stirring fatherly pride fought bravely with a sense of defeat. Then love triumphed over self, and he thought only of Gay—fear for her—terror for what she was to go through.

"Was she glad, or—His clasped hands lightened, and he pulled himself together to hear her say:

"You mustn't feel too bad about it, dear old boy. I—I've thought out everything. I'm going back, but you are to go on. No! don't speak. I can't go back to Bakersville alone, Nick. That would be too hard. But I can stay with Mr. Bartlett. He'd like to have me—somehow I know I could give him pleasure. It—it won't be till spring, Nick, and perhaps by then you—Oh, my dear, she broke off suddenly. "I should be so happy to feel that you were happy! But you won't be satisfied unless you're free, Nick, and—"

"Free?" Nick tossed the word aside as impulsively as he had tossed his stick and bundle on that bright May morning. "Free! and you back there with that old man!" He put his arms about her. "What sort of freedom would it be, Gay, darling? What do you take me for? Do you think I haven't any natural instincts—that I can't be happy over this as well as you? What a goose you are! Have you been losing sleep because you were afraid to tell me that our wanderings are at an end?"

He kissed her with a tenderness that brought her tears, even as she protested: "But it mustn't be the end for you, dear. There's no reason—"

"There's the best of reasons," he insisted. "I tell you what, Gay" (he was, at all appearances, enthusiastic), "we'll go back by train and hire 'The Bird's Nest' of Mr. Bartlett. We'll stay there through October; then, if nothing more interesting turns up, there's the bank, you know, with a raise waiting for me whenever I want to claim it. John Maxwell told me so before I came away. As for the end of the earth—dear—why worry about something that'll keep 'We'll have it to look forward to, you know."

Through her tears Gay threw him a look of gratitude; but further argument proved futile.

"No, I shan't leave you," Nick declared soberly. "I should feel like a slacker. Dear, don't worry about my disappointment. Remember these glorious weeks we've had, and which we'll always have to remember and look back upon. We can't escape responsibilities forever."

"But," she hesitated, "I—I hate to be the one to bring them to you, Nick."

He smiled, and taking her handkerchief, dried her tears as if she were a child.

"There! you're not to cry another tear. As for those responsibilities, dear girl, I brought them on myself. I made you come with me. I didn't give you time to consider these possible complications. I didn't consider 'em myself. But do you imagine that I'd have things different now? Look back on the days we've had together and answer that!"

"Oh, Nick," she said, while comfort swept through her heart in a healing flood, "if I could know that you'd always feel so! But you've only begun to stretch your wings, and who knows how long it will be before you can roam again? Nick, promise me something—promise you'll tell me if the time comes when you feel you must have more freedom. I—I couldn't bear to think that you were tugging at your leash."

"I promise," Nick answered soberly, meeting her mood; then added with all the confidence of youth: "But the time won't come."

Two days later an amazed and beaming Simoon Bartlett came with a big rocker on his front porch, and greeted them with all the cordiality of a long-lost uncle.

"Jiminy Crickets! I was just wonderin' about you. Ain't had a card since you left Portland. Thought maybe you'd took the train for some fur-off port, or set sail for the Fiji Islands. And here you be, turnin' in my own front gate! Set down, ma'am. You're a sight for sore eyes, both o' you; but what in thunderation brings you back about o' time?"

Gay flushed, but Nick answered readily: "Only the time-worn and unquenchable desire for 'Home Sweet Home.' In other words, we want to hire your camp, and when old weather drives us out we'll be back to Bakersville, and the stately portals of the First National Bank. May we have the cabin, Mr. Bartlett?"

"It ain't for rent—not at no price whatever; but you're welcome to use it long as you see fit. But first you got to visit with me a spell, and tell me all about your travels. I ain't had a thing interestin' happen since you left. Man's the evenin', ma'am, that I've set here thinkin' o' that chowder, and the good time you give me, to say nothin' of all them post-cards you sent back, an' letters, too. I saved 'em all. They're in the lacquer box my great-uncle Ebenezer Bartlett brought from Japan. Don't hardly see how you got a chance to write, ma'am."

"We usually manage to do the things we want to do," Gay answered, "and I wanted you to know what a wonderful time we were having."

"Don't regret your hasty bargain, then," chuckled the old man.

"Not yet," said Gay, with a sweet, upward glance at Nick that was not lost upon their host.

"And Nick?" queried Simoon, his eyes twinkling. "Sorry you ain't wadin' in the Pacific, boy—or be you satisfied to come back to old New England?"

"I've never set foot out of New England yet," laughed Nick. "And some day I shall wade in the Pacific. As for being satisfied—you ask Gay. If he's heard any complaints on my part."

"He wouldn't have complained in any case," Gay answered loyally. "That's Nick, Mr. Bartlett. He may not altogether like what life gives him, but he makes the best of it. By all the rules of the game he should be wadin' in the Pacific, or on the way there; but he has chosen to stick by me. I'm going in now to wash up. Train travel is an abomination. While I'm gone Nick can tell you our problems, and then I'll tell all the things he's forgotten."

"No," he said thoughtfully, harking back to the old man's question. "I've never set foot out of New England; yet I thought when Gay and I started off together—" He smiled, as if visioning something very far away. Then the smile vanished, and he said soberly: "Mr. Bartlett, the biggest thing in life has come to us."

"I ain't surprised," said Simoon Bartlett quietly. "Somehow I knew, soon as I asked what brought you here. Nother's else would ha' held either of you back from conquerin' the world. You—You ain't by any chance lettin' yourself feel disappointed, boy?"

"I can't you know, for Gay's sake," Nick answered quickly, "though I'll admit that for just a minute I was—well—stunned. All in a breath the plans of my whole life had to be changed about—changed quickly, so Gay wouldn't know I minded over so little. Perhaps you can't understand, sir, but ever since I was a little shaver I've dreamed of doing what we set out to do. More than anything in the world I desired my freedom. Freedom! What is freedom, Mr. Bartlett, when the look in Gay's eyes has a greater hold on one than the broad highway?"

The old man roared gently for a moment.

"Freedom," he said at last, "is just another name for happiness. Some kids it some ways, Nick, and some another. They'll likely come times, boy, when the highway'll call so hard 'I'll be laid down' 'till you keep from runnin'; but the freedom a man finds in his wife's eyes ain't a bad sort to hold onto. You just hold onto it!"

CHAPTER V.

In any New England state one can find Bakersville: good-sized inland town where neighboring farmers come to trade on Saturdays, when Main Street is lined with teams and trucks. Its Common is bordered by ancient elm trees, and whose boughs shade the white churches lift their spires. There are rows of the old pillared mansions—these seem to look down scornfully on the occasional dwelling of less stately architecture—quiet side streets, and winding byways.

On a May morning, four years after that day when Simoon Bartlett gave his wife definition of the word "freedom," Nicholas Hastings stood in the doorway of the First National Bank of Bakersville, and drew a deep breath, preliminary to going in to the day's work. Spring was in the air, and the sun, painting the budding maples red—turning the orchards into bowers of beauty—tugging at Nick's heartstrings with the old, familiar urge.

Even Main Street, the least lovely part of Bakersville, looked alluring when the sun stood over, warming the warm air that was to make short work of the accumulated stuffiness of winter months. At his fruit stand opposite, G. Leveroni was building a mound of oranges and pineapples, their golden hues seeming a part of the bright sunshine; and the post office across the way the R.F.D. man was starting out upon his rounds.

"Gosh! I envy him!" said Nick, and did not know that he spoke aloud till someone answered.

"I do myself, Nick. A great day to be out. I've half a mind to desert the ship and take a holiday."

Nick turned with a smile to the bank's president, who had spoken. "A holiday? I've almost forgotten what the word means. Take one by all means, Mr. Maxwell. I guess we can worry along 'without you!'"

John Maxwell laughed.

"I'd jump at that advice if my car wasn't in the paint shop. As it is—"

He stopped, suddenly aware that Nick's attention had wandered. A blue roadster was standing before the post office, from which stepped a slender woman in a crisp gown that matched the car. There was something like and graceful in her figure that caught John Maxwell's eye. Pausing on the top step, she turned, and perceiving Nick, waved a greeting to which he responded with a gay gesture and a quick lighting of his eyes.

"Your new neighbor?" he queried, as she turned about.

Nick started, as if his thoughts were far away.

"Yes, she's a people—the Hallidays, she's an artist, you know. Her husband writes."

"Any children?"

"No. I believe they have some sort of notion that children would hamper their careers."

John Maxwell snorted with indignation.

"That's all I care to hear about 'em. How's Gay?"

Nick faced his questioner.

"Gay? What made you ask, sir?"

"Thought last time I saw her she looked seedy. Didn't like it, I'm very fond of Gay."

Nick smiled.

"I'm fond of her myself!" Then he said soberly: "The kids both indulged in whooping cough, you know, and Gay lost sleep. She's not been quite right since—tired, I guess. Well" (with a reluctant glance at the town clock), "I suppose I must retire to my cage."

"A cage—for Nick?" murmured John Maxwell as the boy left him. He stood for a moment watching the lady in the blue roadster ride away. He frowned. Then his thoughts flew to Gay, and his face softened. "She's in a cage, too," he thought wisely, "only she doesn't guess it, bless her loyal heart! Well, I trust her new neighbor will keep her hands off Nick—and her eyes, too! She hasn't any babies to lose sleep over. No wonder she looks fresh as a new-blown rose!"

Then, as reluctantly as Nick, he entered the portals of the First National Bank. But business was not pressing that morning, and his thoughts wandered. Why, he thought irritably, hadn't the janitor extinguished the furnace fire? The pipes of the radiator were still warm. He arose, opened another window, and in desperation threw wide the door to his private room. At eleven o'clock he decided he couldn't stand it. Passing Nick's cage he said: "I'm taking your advice—till after dinner. Thunder! this place is stifling! Why don't you open something more?"

Nick made a discouraged gesture toward a stenographer.

"She's got a cold. She always has a cold—can't stand a draught, so the rest of us suffer. A draught, on a day like this—if you kindly forget to close the door when you go out I'll award you a medal for saving one life at least."

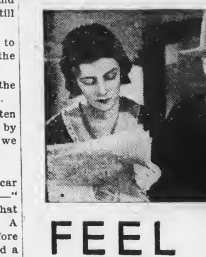

"It would be the first I ever received," laughed John Maxwell as he obeyed.

He stepped outside, drawing in a deep breath of the welcome air. His own home lay to the north, but something drew him in the opposite direction—possibly the sight of a blue roadster turning a corner. He followed it, and came to the house once occupied by Selma Smith. There he paused, surveying the old-time garden that had been restored. A rickety cow shed had vanished, and in its place stood a trim garage, connected with the house by a pergola, which would soon be a wealth of climbing roses.

It was a good old house, thought John Maxwell. He was glad the new people hadn't spoiled it with a tower, as the man who bought the Blodgett farm had done. Give it a year or two, and the garden would be a thing of beauty, and it was good to see that it made Nick's house next door look shabby. Yes, it did look shabby; there was no denying the fact, but painting cost in these days, and the boy's expenses had been heavy the last three years.

A Simple Treatment For Children's Colds

Cold in the head is very common at this time of year, especially in the young. Neglect in treating a cold, whether in infants or adults. For the very young, Baby's Own Tablets are the first step in doing so. Containing no narcotic or other harmful drugs they soothe the child's restlessness, relieve its suffering and ensure convalescence.

Baby's Own Tablets are without an equal for relieving indigestion, constipation and colic. They check diarrhoea; break up colds and simple fevers; promote health-giving sleep and make the dreaded teething period easy. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CRY in the night. Colic! No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy. This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never harm. It is the sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. Whenever there's need of gentle regulation. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it safe for frequent use.

And a more liberal dose of Castoria is always better for growing children than strong medicine meant only for adult use.

and allowed a credit of $3.00 on your old mattress, irrespective of condition. The public passed very peculiar remarks about the sale, some even intimating that if you were to display a photograph of a mattress they would allow you $3.00 for it.

Little did they worry about such propaganda, they worked on the theory that talk of any kind was wonderful advertising.

Their largest competitor in the same city, who also conduct an enormous mail order business, had been watching the transaction with scornful eyes. Desiring to display their purchasing power they instructed the buyer from their furniture department to go direct to the manufacturer of these mattresses with an order for 1000 mattresses, and endeavor to obtain the lowest possible price.

They were quoted a price of $7.00 each, but declined to give them the order unless they were given a price of $5.00.

The manufacturers refused this at the time, it was not long until they phoned their acceptance. Upon second thought the directors decided it was better to accept the order, even though they only made a profit of forty-four cents on each. It was far better to make this small profit and keep the wheels of their factories going than to close down for the summer months as they had anticipated.

Less than a week after the acceptance of the order this mail order house advertised not only through the medium of the local newspapers, but over the radio as well, a very special price of $4.95.

In less than six hours the entire lot was disposed of. The loss of $1.55 which they enjoyed on every mattress was immediately charged up to advertising. Though the average person may question the advisability of such transactions, it is surprising how cheap such advertising really is. Can you imagine how many times the name of this firm was mentioned not only during the course of the sale but for many months after.

The result is that those who were not fortunate enough to cash in on this bargain are continuously looking through the daily papers to find a repetition of this. It falls to appear again, but you can be sure that their attention is attracted to a multitude of other so-called bargains, to which has been added the loss on their famous special. This reaction of course was their object, and is what is frequently referred to as modern merchandising.
